

Introduction

George McKelvey Co., Inc. ("GMC") is a registered investment adviser with the Securities and Exchange Commission as well as a registered broker-dealer, member FINRA/SIPC/MSRB. Brokerage and investment advisory services and fees differ and it is important for you to understand the differences. Free and simple tools are available to research firms and financial professionals at Investor.gov/CRS, which also provides educational materials about broker-dealers, investment advisers, and investing.

What investment services and advice can you provide me?

GMC offers both brokerage services and investment advisory services to retail investors. GMC provides continuous advice on a discretionary and non-discretionary basis to clients based on the individual needs of the client. Through personal discussions in which goals and objectives based on a client's particular circumstances are established, we develop a client's personal investment policy and create and manage a portfolio based on that policy. For non-discretionary accounts, GMC will seek prior client consent for every contemplated transaction. Therefore, clients with non-discretionary accounts should understand that any delay in obtaining consent may result in different and potentially less favorable transaction terms, including higher security price and/or higher commissions and/or limited availability of the securities sought. Account supervision is guided by the stated objectives of the client as well as tax considerations. Clients may impose reasonable restrictions on investing in certain securities, types of securities, or industry sectors.

Financial planning is a comprehensive evaluation of a client's current and future financial state by using currently known variables to predict future cash flows, asset values and withdrawal plans.

GMC offers administrative and bill paying services, but only on an exception basis and in the sole discretion of GMC.

For more detailed information, please refer to our Disclosure Brochure, the ADV Part 2A, under Item 4 Advisory Business and Item 7 Types of Clients, which can be found by CLICKING HERE.

"Given my financial situation, should I choose an investment advisory service? Should I choose a brokerage service? Should I choose both types of services? Why or why not?"

"How will you choose investments to recommend to me?"

"What is your relevant experience, including your licenses, education and other qualifications? What do these qualifications mean?"

What fees will I pay?

Our fees for our Portfolio Management Services are based upon a percentage of assets under management up to a maximum of 1.5% and are calculated annually based upon the billable balance on the last day of the prior fiscal year. Portfolio management fees are either debited directly from the account or paid by check by the client on a quarterly basis after the service for that quarter has been completed.

GMC includes certain transactional costs in the client's management fee. This arrangement is referred to as a "Wrap Program". For accounts in the Wrap Program, we pay a fee to the custodian based on the clients' transaction costs associated with the purchase or sale of securities. Because of the nature of a Wrap Program, where wrap fees are not tied to an account's frequency of trading and apply to generally all assets in the account, the wrap fee program client may pay more or less than if the client had compensated us outside of the Wrap Program.

We charge Financial Planning Services, Consulting Services, Administrative Services and Bill Paying Services on an hourly basis with fees ranging from $75 to $350/hour depending upon the complexity of the case and the financial professional working on the matter.

GMC does have an account minimum of $250,000 which can be waived in the sole discretion of GMC. All fees are negotiable.

GMC as a broker-dealer charges the client a maximum of $40 on any transaction regardless of its size. Mark-ups, 12b-1 fees or sales loads are eliminated whenever possible. A client could be charged more when there are more trades in his or her account, therefore creating an incentive for GMC to encourage the client to trade often. GMC deliberately designed its fee structure to minimize incentives to recommend securities for the fee or commission income.

You will pay fees and costs whether you make or lose money on your investments. Fees and costs will reduce any amount of money you make on your investments over time. Please make sure you understand what fees and costs you are paying. For more specific information regarding our fees, please refer our Disclosure Brochure, the ADV Part 2A under Item 5 Fees and Compensation by CLICKING HERE.

“Help me understand how these fees and costs might affect my investments. If I give you $10,000 to invest, how much will go to fees and costs, and how much will be invested for me?”

What are your legal obligations to me when providing recommendations as my broker-dealer or when acting as my investment adviser? How else does your firm make money and what conflicts of interest do you have?

When we provide you with a recommendation as your broker-dealer or act as your investment adviser, we have to act in your best interest and not put our interest ahead of yours. At the same time, the way we make money creates some conflicts with your interests. You should understand and ask us about these conflicts because they can affect the investment advice we provide you. Here are some examples to help you understand what this means.

GMC may engage in principal transactions. This means that GMC may buy securities for its own account and knowingly buy for itself from or sell securities it owns to clients. This creates a conflict of interest because, when acting both as an adviser and a party to a securities transaction, GMC has a potential incentive to recommend and execute such a transaction in a way that benefits GMC the most, even if these recommendations are in the best interest of our clients.

Robert McKelvey is a member of various boards, where he serves with or without additional compensation. One or more of these companies may also be an advisory client of our firm. Mr. McKelvey may spend up to 20% of his time on these non-advisory activities. GMC attempts to mitigate the potential conflict by disclosing it to clients.

For more specific information regarding compensation and conflicts, please refer our Disclosure Brochure, the ADV Part 2A under Item 10 Outside Affiliations by CLICKING HERE.

“How might your conflicts of interest affect me, and how will you address them?”

How do your financial professionals make money?

Financial professionals of GMC are paid a portion of the advisory fees collected from clients. Additionally commissions can be paid from the broker-dealer to financial professionals of GMC. Financial professionals are not rewarded sales bonuses.

Do you or your financial professionals have legal or disciplinary history?

No. Free and simple tools are available to research firms and financial professionals at Investor.gov/CRS.

“As a financial professional, do you have any disciplinary history? For what type of conduct?”
